

Please join Superintendent Carol R. Johnson and members of the Full-service Schools Roundtable for:

Schools at the Hub: Community Partnerships in the Boston Public Schools
Report Release and Panel Discussion

- Thursday, February 2, 2012, 8:00 AM - 10:30 AM
- The Children's Museum, 308 Congress Street, Boston

-
- What role do community-based partners play in delivering health, enrichment, academic and support services in Boston Public Schools?
 - How do schools coordinate their work with external partners?
 - How can the district maximize the impact of these partnerships on student outcomes?

The release of Schools at the Hub: Community Partnerships in the Boston Public Schools will detail results from the first-ever district-wide survey of school-community partnerships in Boston, including information from 93% of BPS principals/headmasters who identified close to 200 partner organizations working with BPS.

The report includes survey findings, pinpoints gaps, and provides recommendations to ensure school-community partnerships are strategic, aligned with student needs, integrated with district and school goals, equitably distributed across the student population, and coordinated effectively.

The event will include:

- Presentation of report findings by Abby Weiss, Manager, Child and Youth Readiness Cabinet, Massachusetts Executive Office of Education; former Executive Director, Full-service Schools Roundtable
- Remarks by Superintendent of Schools Carol R. Johnson
- Panel Discussion with:
 - Melissa Partridge, Boston Public Schools Office of Innovation, Partnerships and Development
 - Marie St. Fleur, Chief of Advocacy and Strategic Investment, City of Boston
 - Robert Kilkenny, Executive Director, Alliance for Inclusion and Prevention
 - Arthur Unobskey, Principal, Irving Middle School
 - Rahn Dorsey, Evaluation Director, the Barr Foundation, Panel Moderator

Please register today at <http://conta.cc/fssroundtable>. Seating is limited.

Visit <http://www.bostonkids.org/plan/directions.html> for directions and parking information.

We hope to see you there!

The Full-service Schools Roundtable, info@fssroundtable.org